Thank you. See you November 19th!

Building an economy that works for Washington women

"Come on down!" It's been over 50 years since The Price is Right began challenging contestants - most often women - to guess the price of consumer goods and "showcase" their ability to make sound financial decisions at home.

Since then, most women have entered the workforce; today they earn the majority of college degrees. Yet women still lag men in achieving economic security - during their working years and in retirement.

Join keynote speaker Kristin Rowe-Finkbeiner, co-founder of MomsRising.org for a showcase showdown of new public policies to improve women's economic security. We'll celebrate past achievements and chart a course toward future policy successes that will help all people realize their dreams.
